Editors Corner

Just setting aside some time to get together, chat, and answer some questions.

On a sad note, George Burr (a HUGE President) passed away this past June.

On the paranoia front: Have you seen the tv commercial about the guy that has his wife open the car door from the airport or the On-star ads of a similar nature? Well hackers have demo'd a way to do that with SMS (texting). Researchers have reported that "Apple laptop microcontroller chips are shipped with default passwords that, once discovered, can be used as a hiding spot for malware as well as a conduit for disabling the battery and even blowing it up."

Apple has released OS X (10.7) 'Lion' for download. Some/all of your programs (PowerPC based) may not work. You should check out the specs/requirements:
